PASTOR'S NOTE

Dear Saints,

Does prayer change things? Many people who don't pray would say no; in fact, that's why they don't pray - because it makes no difference. Scripture tells a different story on practically every page. The prophet Elijah, for example, changed the course of history with his prayer. Paul entrusts himself to Philemon's prayer in the hope that it would reunite them. The angel Gabriel reveals that John the Baptist's conception was an answer to his parents' prayers. And by the end of Job's story, the wretched figure of today's first reading had been so restored to fullness of health and prosperity, God was following his lead on how to deal with some of his irreverent friends. So yes, prayer definitely changes things.

Above all, perhaps, it changes us. Prayer is conversation with God, and we simply cannot withstand such divine encounters intact, as it were. That's because our "intactness" is really just brokenness in need of restoration and healing. We come as we are - sick, wounded, brokenhearted - and we leave with a wholeness that can only come from God himself. We meet the Divine Physician so he can grasp our hands and help us up.

Having been healed, we cannot keep our newfound vitality to ourselves. We must go where we're called to go, say what we're called to say, do what we're called to do. We must win over as many as possible so that they, too, can enjoy the healing, restorative power of God's friendship and love.

Christ's Peace,

Father Daniel

We must consider how to rouse one another to love and good works.

CATHOLIC SCHOOLS WEEK

During our celebratory activities for Catholic Schools Week, our students honored the witness of the martyrs, recognized our noble school mascot the Chanticleer, displayed their House pride and pride in our country, and welcomed visitors to our school. Smiles and laughter abounded as we reveled in the distinguishing aspects of our Catholic identity—not least of which is the joy we take in being part of this community! For cheerfulness and joy are also hallmarks of who we are; it is cheerfulness and joy that enable our students to delight in learning, to be resilient in the face of challenges, to aspire to carry out God’s loving plan for their lives.

Thank you to all the parents who have chosen us as partners in the education of their children. As a school, we exist to support you, and we consider it a privilege to join with you in this tremendous task. Thank you also to the loyal and generous parishioners of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church for their steadfast support of Catholic education. We love you and pray for you!

"Cheerfulness prepares a glorious mind
for the noblest of acts."

—Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton
